THE ART OF HEALTHY RELATIONSHIPS

Join us for a special worship service, lunch, and seminar exploring God-centered principles for building healthy, meaningful relationships. Whether you are single, married, a parent, or simply seeking stronger connections with others, this event will offer practical insights and encouragement for everyday life. We invite you to attend and bring a friend! Sept 26.

COUNSELOR'S CORNER

Fall has a way of inviting us to slow down and notice what's around us. As the school year moves along, this can be a great time for students and families to pause, reconnect, and take stock of what is going well.

A few simple ways to create those moments at home:

- Notice the good: Ask your child to name one thing they enjoyed or appreciated that day.
- Celebrate effort: Point out perseverance, kindness, responsibility, and other small wins - not just grades or outcomes.
- Create moments to connect: A walk, a car ride, or even a few quiet minutes together can open the door to meaningful conversation.
- Practice gratitude: Encourage children to notice the people, experiences, and everyday things they are thankful for.
- Make room for rest: Busy seasons can fill up quickly. Protecting time to recharge is important, too.

Sometimes the most meaningful growth happens when we simply slow down enough to notice it.

Warmly,
Mrs. Sam
