"Thank God, It's Salvation"
1 Thessalonians 5:12-18 (ERV)
Recap of Presentation - November 21, 2026

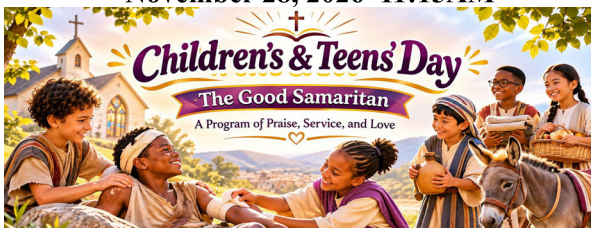

The Perspectives Panel discussion, facilitated by Jackie Abrams, started with the following questions: What are you thankful for? Is your thankfulness reserved only for those times when God is good to you? What should be different about the way a thankful Christian treats others? Do you truly believe a person can be thankful while treating others poorly? In 1 Thessalonians 5:12–18, Christians are instructed to be thankful in all things. This means thanking God when times are good, when times are difficult, and even during seasons of waiting because His blessings are always present. Thankfulness is a principle that should guide your life, regardless of your circumstances. God was great before the adversity, and He remains great during and after it.
Psalm 103 provides a powerful reminder of why you should always be thankful. It encourages you to bless the Lord and never forget His benefits—His forgiveness, healing, redemption, unfailing love, compassion, and mercy.

Above all, your greatest reason for thanking God is the gift of salvation: the forgiveness of your sins and the promise of eternal life through Jesus Christ. While you are grateful for the many blessings God provides, salvation is the greatest gift because it gives you the assurance of life with Him. When you intentionally remember all that God has done for you, gratitude becomes more than a response to your circumstances; it becomes a way of life. You have every reason to thank God!

Thankfulness restores the heart. It is uplifting not only to you, but also to those around you. When the Spirit of God takes residence in your heart, you begin to see others from God's perspective. The gratitude you express to God, particularly for the gift of salvation, is reflected in the effort and commitment you demonstrate in serving His kingdom.

The program concluded with Ron Harlan sharing a question his wife asks their four-year-old every day: "What is your most favorite part of the day, and what was the most difficult?" This has become a daily family routine that encourages him to intentionally recognize the blessings of the Lord and to give thanks, even during difficult times.
Call to Action: Whatever happens, always be thankful. This is how God wants you to live in Christ Jesus.

First Aid Herbals Part 2

This week we continue to explore a handful of botanicals that have been traditionally used for first aid and take a look at their many benefits.

Mullein: During the Civil War, the Confederates turned to Mullein to treat respiratory problems when their conventional medical supplies ran out. Mullein has numerous uses, but the main one is in the treatment of lung disease and coughs. It helps to clear the lungs and relieve spasms. One easy way to use Mullein is by making an herbal tea of it. Use one tablespoon to one cup of hot distilled water. Infuse for a minimum of 30 minutes. Strain and drink.

Eucalyptus: Eucalyptus is an evergreen tree that's widely used for its medicinal properties. This herb is a great source of antioxidants, which help protect your body from oxidative stress and free radical damage.

It is widely used as a natural cold remedy due to its anti-inflammatory and mucus-relieving properties. It's often used to help relieve symptoms from conditions like common cold, nasal congestion, sinusitis, bronchitis, asthma, flu, acute respiratory distress syndrome (ARDS), chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD).

A few ways to use Eucalyptus:

As a Tea: Use one tablespoon to one cup of hot distilled water. Pour the water over the dry leaves. Cover and infuse for a minimum of 30 minutes. Strain and drink. You can add the juice of fresh lemon and a little raw honey if you desire.

As aromatherapy: Add a few drops of eucalyptus essential oil to a diffuser or steam bowl.

As a topical use: To ease congestion, add a few drops of eucalyptus oil to a carrier oil, such as fractionated coconut oil, and apply it to your chest.

Cloves: Cloves have been well known for a long time. A tea made of clove buds helps with nausea and rid the stomach and intestines of gas. The oil from the cloves has broad spectrum antibiotic properties so it acts as a strong germicide, making it an excellent treatment for viruses, bacteria, and fungi. It is considered by some to be one of the most powerful germicidal agents in the herb kingdom. Cloves are also known to increase circulation of the blood. This helps to promote digestion and nutrition.
