Offering Appeal
Collaborating for Excellence in Learning

Today’s offering is for the Southwestern Union Conference Education Endowment Fund. This fund provides Seventh-day Adventist schools in the Southwestern Union with financial assistance to offer scholarships to students in need of support with educational expenses.

Many families are struggling financially to send their children to Seventh-day Adventist schools due to the rising costs of tuition. The goal of this fund is to enable these students to attend a school within the Southwestern Union Conference and to participate in the mission of Adventist education: collaborating for learning excellence through faith and service.

Last year, this fund contributed nearly $354,030 in aid to students at the elementary, secondary, and university levels of Seventh-day Adventist education in the Southwestern Union.

The foundation for establishing this fund is based on counsel from Adventist co-founder Ellen G. White, who wrote: “Provisions should be made, means invested; a fund secured to educate men and women of other nations and in our own country,” Selected Messages, Book 2, p. 209.

As you return your tithes, please also consider supporting today’s offering focus, which will support Adventist education within the Southwestern Union.
