CHANGED ON BOTH SIDES OF THE DOOR by Ivan Martinez KYTN Literature Ministries Coordinator

There was something special about this summer—it marked the completion of seven summer canvassing programs I have led for the KYTN Conference. Each one has seen God's hand at work, thousands of books have entered communities across Kentucky and Tennessee, and students and leaders have been forever changed by their encounters with God and ministry.

One of our greatest challenges each year is finding capable and willing leaders. This summer God assembled a powerful leadership team. Five of our leaders came from students who have canvassed with us for several years. We had 22 students participate in our summer program this year, with 17 of these being repeaters from previous programs.

Over the course of our 9-week summer program, our students distributed more than 11,000 books and collected over $170,000 in donations.

The most meaningful part of the summer is what God did in the hearts of the students themselves. Early in the program, one of our students came up to me and said that she felt like canvassing was the closest to God she had ever felt. This is why she keeps coming back.

From that moment, I began praying for her specifically. My prayer was that wherever she went in life, she would always experience the presence of God even more deeply than she had while canvassing. That she would come to understand that God wasn't only near her while she was doing this work, but that He was with her everywhere.

Several weeks later, during a break, she called me and asked what I thought about her getting rebaptized. I was thrilled. We talked about what baptism means and represents, and she told me that she wanted to make that commitment. What made the moment even more special was that another student was sitting beside me while I was on the phone. After I hung up, she told me that she had been wrestling with the question of rebaptism for several years. She said that the answers I had given the other student had answered many of the questions she herself had been struggling with. She then told me that she, too, wanted to give her life to God through rebaptism. By the end of the summer, eight of our students and leaders decided to be baptized or rebaptized.

We often think about the literature ministry in terms of the people we meet at the doors, the books we place and the communities we reach. But this summer reminded us that God is working on both sides of the door. While our students were carrying literature into the homes and hearts of people in the community, God was also using that same ministry to work on the hearts of the students carrying it.
