

Faithful in the Small Things

School News | Volume 1, Issue No. 7 | September 18, 2026

When we read the Bible, we meet people who did extraordinary things—led nations, faced enemies, changed history. We remember their great moments. But we often overlook a key question: What were they doing before the great moment came? David gives us the answer.

Before he was king, before anyone knew his name, before he stood in front of Goliath, David was simply a shepherd. His days were spent tending his father's sheep—no audience, no applause, no recognition. But David was faithful. When a lion or bear attacked the flock, he didn't run. He protected the sheep. Later, when he faced Goliath, he told King Saul that the same God who had delivered him from lions and bears would deliver him now.

David's courage on the battlefield didn't appear out of nowhere. It had been built quietly in the field. Every ordinary day of responsibility was preparing him for an extraordinary day of opportunity. The same is true for students today. Today's math lesson may feel like just another class. The homework on your desk may seem unimportant. A small project may feel like something to simply get through. But these small things are shaping you. Every time you study when you'd rather play, you build discipline. Every time you give your best effort, you build responsibility. Every time you keep a promise, tell the truth, or help a classmate, you build character.

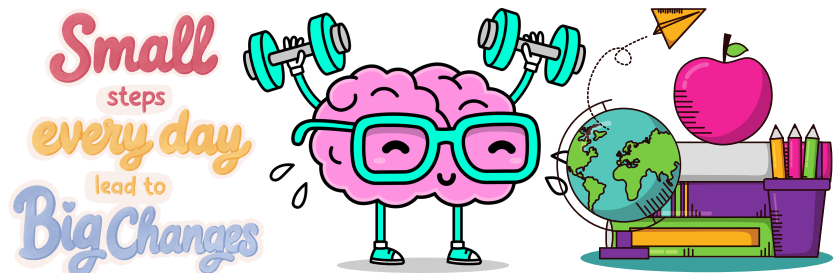

Someday, your Goliath will come—a hard exam, a big decision, a leadership opportunity, a crisis, a chance to help when others are too afraid. When it does, you'll rely on the habits and character you built on ordinary days, when few were watching. Success rarely begins on the day of the big opportunity. It begins long before. David defeated Goliath in a single day, but God had been preparing him through countless ordinary days in the fields of Bethlehem.

So don't underestimate today. Be faithful in your studies, your effort, your kindness, your promises. Do the small things well, even when nobody's watching. You may feel like you're only tending sheep today. But God may be preparing you for a Goliath tomorrow.

Be faithful in the small things. They may be preparing you for the greatest opportunities of your life.
